

A lineman strings wires to take current to remote parts of Korea.

Wood scaffolding for a new building is a familiar sight in Seoul.

The LOOK of SEOUL

The look of South Korea is to the future, with confidence. And these pictures of Seoul, the capital, illustrate the forward-looking spirit.

In the years out of the world's headlines following the end of the Korean war in 1953, there were not only the recent devastation and human casualties to overcome, but also the legacies of a feudal past and a previous repressive colonial regime. As late as the early 1960s, Korea was still impoverished, with rampant inflation and political chaos.

But now, the better part of a decade of government stability and economic progress has led to all-round improvement, with a particularly striking rate of growth. Overall growth in gross national product averaged 11.7 per cent over the five-year period, 1964-1969, with an estimated growth of 15.5 per cent during 1969.

After the war, a huge U.S. aid effort, together with an international assistance program, went toward supplying urgent necessities, food and shelter, war damage repair and laying a base for economic development. The U.S. Agency for International Development played, and is still playing, a significant part with help in planning, loans and technical assistance in many sectors.

Now, economic advance has led to plans to end special U.S. assistance there early in the 1970s. Korea hopes that she will be able to achieve self-sufficiency in food and end dependence on all aid grants from abroad in the next year or so.

Ireland Banks Close, Cash Hard to Find

By DENNIS O'CONNOR

Associated Press Writer
DUBLIN, Ireland (AP) — A bank shutdown in Ireland is forcing the public to turn to bartenders, druggists and grocers for cash—and the shutdown is threatening to spread to Northern Ireland.

Union leaders are considering calling out 3,000 affiliated bank employees in the six Northern Irish counties governed by Britain. Bank clerks on both sides of the border belong to the same union, the Bank Officials Association.

Fashion Security — Pants

By HELEN HENNESSY
NEA Women's Editor

NEW YORK — (NEA) — Hemlines can stop anywhere from the knee to the ankle and be A-O.K. in fashion this season. But because many women don't like the longer lengths and many simply don't know which of the longer lengths is best for them, they're running scared and avoiding the whole issue by hopping into pants instead of dresses.

What the new hemlines really boil down to is proportion—a long, lean line from top to bottom—and where the hem hits is almost academic. So until we feel at home with this new fashion gimmick, the simplest solution seems to be pants. They create the right effect.

It's ironic that fashion's most controversial subject a mere few seasons ago has suddenly become "establishment." What most women worry with grave misgivings is what they're now clinging to for fashion security. It's far from a fluke, however. The emergence of pants as fall fashion's salvation is due to the fact that they accomplish the seemingly impossible task of rendering virtually every length acceptable.

The new longer hemlines, hovering mid-calf or so, pose a problem as to what to do with the rest of the leg. Fortunately, many manufacturers offer matching pants. And that makes it all much easier.

Bridge problems tend to repeat themselves. Here is a hand from Alan Truscott's book that shows North faced with the same problem that faced Oswald Jacoby some 35 years back. Look at the North hand. You have opened one club. East, who is not vulnerable, has jumped to four hearts. Your partner has bid four spades and West has gone to five hearts.

You feel rather certain that your partner will be able to make seven spades if you can discourage a heart lead. How do you go about it? Do you just bid five spades? Do you jump to six? Do you try a fake cue bid of six hearts?

Oswald Jacoby had this same problem in a rubber bridge game about 35 years ago. In those days, the bonus for a vulnerable grand slam was 2,250 points and he wanted it. He jumped to seven spades and put it up to West to figure out what to lead.

West thought awhile and opened the unbid suit, whereupon South ran off 13 tricks.

John Emery of Dallas had a similar problem in the Vanderbilt Cup some 15 years back and made the same bid Jacoby had made with the same delightful result. That is, delightful for the bidder. West was not happy.

Truscott's North also bid seven spades. As Alan points out, he made a deliberate overbid and again it worked. It looks as if this type of hand is just bad for the defenders.

Koret of California puts a well-seamed cardigan walking coat over straight-as-a-reed pants in comfortable doubleknit. Wide-brimmed hat and cowboy scarf at the throat add a bit of Annie Oakley charm (left). Marsha Fox, for Alvin Duskin, believe pants are the answer to the longhouette proportion dilemma. Knit jersey longhouette tank shirt is teamed with pencil-slim pants and skinny top of carnival stripes (center). They can go it alone or together. Jeannemarie Volk, for Doodles, prints an Indian border motif on pants and matching scarf (right), and pulls the look together with a midi cardigan vest. All designs are in Acrilan knit that's Wear-Dated by Monsanto for a year's normal wear.

known for his avant-garde views, pops a tank top mid-jumper in supple Acrilan jersey over matching straight-legged pants and a skinny T-shirt striped in musky tones.

The about-to-be-scorned mini has been quickly reincarnated to emerge as today's timely top to pants—and the combo qualifies as fall's newest pantsuit. One infinitely wearable version comes in all-time wardrobe favorite, camel.

If you want an easy out to look "in," you'll find it in pants.

Garner, Elam Team Up Again

By DICK KLEINER

HOLLYWOOD — (NEA) — James Garner turned to the wardrobe lady on the set of his new film, "Latigo."

"Lambie," he said, "I think I left my hat in the trailer. Would you mind?"

She toddled off. Garner turned to the rest of us and said, "I also don't know the words. I forget them as soon as I finish a scene, and I thought this scene was over."

So he flipped open his script, read through the pages once or twice and memorized his line. Then he went back to The Game.

On movie sets, there is more time spent waiting around—waiting for the lighting to be set up, mostly—than anything else. So the cast members become eager for any new diversissement.

TOGETHER AGAIN—Jack Elam, left, and James Garner confront each other in "Latigo," a comedy Western that recalls "Support Your Local Sheriff," in which, not coincidentally, they also starred.

to keep themselves amused between set-ups.

Currently the rage is a thing called liar's poker. You deal out one five-card hand to everybody. Each player must announce what he has, but he need not tell the truth. The next player can either accept the hand—then draw a couple of cards and announce a stronger hand—or call the first player's bluff. It's a good game that encourages the fine old art of lying.

Garner, Jack Elam and director Bert Kennedy played between every break. This triumvirate worked together before, on a highly successful comedy western, "Support Your Local Sheriff."

In fact, Kennedy has your hand say.

HELEN HELP US!

by Helen Bottel

YOUTH ASKED FOR IT!
This column is for young people, their problems and pleasures, their troubles and fun. As with the rest of Helen Help Us!, it welcomes laughs but won't dodge a serious question with a brush-off.

Send your teenage questions to YOUTH ASKED for it, care of Helen Help Us! this newspaper.

EVERY GIRL'S PROBLEM—SOMETIMES

Dear Helen:

I love my mother, but if she loves me, I hate the way she shows it.

She thinks I'm boy crazy. If I just say hello to a boy, she thinks I'm in love with him, or acting like a "cheap pick-up." The other night I was walking a little ahead of my folks downtown and some teen-age boys drove by in a car. One said, "Hi!" and I said it back, and Mom flipped. I was just being friendly and so were they.

She yells at me constantly about stupid things. One minute she's mad, the next lovey-dovey. That means she wants me to do something like make breakfast or grocery shop, etc. After that's done, I'm crawling the walls because she starts to yell again. If I defend myself, she slaps me for "talking back."

She tells me she wants me to be decent. Everyone I know and some of Mom's friends think I'm a sweet kid.

Like I say, Helen, I'm sure Mom loves me, but isn't there a more affectionate way of showing it? I'm tired of being used as a whipping post.—THE SUCKER

P.S. Please print this so my mother can read it.

Dear Sucker:

I've printed it so every mother can read it. All too often parents are so busy "raising their kids right" that they forget the vital importance of empathy, friendship, humor, demonstrated love. Give your mother points for the "right" upbringing—otherwise you wouldn't be a sweet kid. But I hope she reads your letter and remembers how necessary those other points are too!—H

Dear Helen:

My best friend is always telling me I am her best friend. The strange thing about her is she is always inviting boys and girls over to her house for parties. They're nice kids and I know most of them—but she never invites me. The next day she calls and tells me about the parties. She says most of the kids act "dumb" but she keeps on inviting them, while leaving me out.

Why does she do this if I am her "best friend?" If she doesn't want me, at least she shouldn't mention the parties to me afterwards.—LONELY

Dear Lonely:

"Best friends" should be able to tell each other what bothers them. If you nurse resentments, you won't be best friends long.

Ask this girl how SHE would feel if you gave a party and left her out, then expected her to hear all about it next day. If she truly likes you, she'll have a good explanation—or start being more considerate.—H

Dear Helen:

I was going steady with a guy. Then my girl friend came over one day and he fell for her because she is top heavy for her age, which is 13. (His age.) Are all boys like this?—T.E.

Dear T:

...Only age-13 types who judge girls by their measurements. Maybe you're better off without him?—H

This column is dedicated to family living, so if you're having kid trouble or just plain trouble; let Helen help YOU. She will also welcome your own amusing experiences. Address Helen Bottel in care of (name of newspaper).

Praises What WR Has Done for Arkansas

MONTICELLO, Ark. (AP) — Mrs. Winthrop Rockefeller says statistics do not begin to tell the story of what her husband has done for Arkansas.
"No longer must we explain away wide-open gambling halls on the main streets of one of our loveliest cities," Mrs. Rockefeller said in a speech here Thursday. "No longer must we close our ears to the cries of suffering in our prisons."
"No longer do we welcome into our state fast-talking phony insurance peddlers who for so long cheated unsuspecting citizens of their life savings," she said. "Today we can stand up without fear and say no to these things and to all the people who until recently operated behind the protection of what was supposed to be our own state government."
Mrs. Rockefeller also said the governor had gained the reputation as being the man who brought "dramatic industrial progress to a predominately agriculture state."
"It made me especially proud of him when, from the position of acknowledged leadership, he told the Southern Governors' Conference that Arkansas — for one — would not sell out to any industry that didn't respect our wonderful natural environment," she said.

WORLD ALMANAC FACTS

Jeanette Rankin was the first woman elected to Congress (1917-1919); she also served a second term in the House (1941-1943). The World Almanac recalls that Rep. Rankin cast the only dissenting vote in Congress opposing the declaration of war on Japan during World War II. In 1917, she also voted against the declaration of war on Germany.

Q—Who was the first U.S. president who visited a Pope during his term?
A—John F. Kennedy.

Q—Why is a spider's web called a cobweb?
A—The old Dutch word for spider was "cop," so with a slight change it has become cob in English.

Q—Does a Mexican jumping bean really jump?
A—The bean does not jump, but inside the bean is a caterpillar that moves and stretches—this makes the bean roll and tumble.

Bobcats in 14-6 Win at Fairview

By BILL MOORE
Star Sportswriter

In a thriller to the finish last night, the Hope Bobcats staved off a last minute drive by the Fairview Cardinals, and came away with a sweet 14-6 well-earned victory.

Hope is now 3-1 for the year and 1-0 in conference play. The next game is against the Malvern Leopards, Friday, at 7:30 p.m. in Hammons Stadium. For the first few minutes, neither team could really go anywhere, but midway into the first period Ronnie Massanelli connected with Buddy Ingram for a 57 yard pass play to the Fairview 17 yard line. However that drive stalled at the Cardinal five when Fairview took over on downs.

Three minutes later the Bobcats had the ball again after Ray Wheelington ran back a 25 yard punt return to the Cardinal 35. Two plays netted six yards to the 29.

Seconds later Massanelli found Roger Newton behind almost everyone and the result was a 29 yard touchdown pass with 10:16 left in the half. Tim Whites' extra point kick was good and Hope led, 7-0.

That's the way the first half ended, and it looked like a good second half gridiron battle was ahead for the fans.

Hope took the second half kickoff and immediately proceeded down to the Fairview one yard line before once again the Cardinals held and then took over. However, Fairview could do nothing and with 5:20 left in the third period, Hope once again took over.

Four first downs in a row, relying on the running of Newton and Gary Wheelington, the Bobcats pushed their way down to the Cardinal one, and with 1:42 left in the period Massanelli followed center Randy Wright into the end zone for the second Hope score. After White hit his second PAT, the Bobcats held a joyful 14-0 lead with one quarter to go.

The Cardinals then came right back and Larry Finn scored from one yard out with 8:20 left, highlighting a 73 yard drive from their own 27. The extra point was no good and Hope led 14-6.

On the following kickoff, Fairview used some of their trickery to recover an onside kick and set up camp at the Cats' 47 yard line. Holding on downs the Hope squad began pushing uphill out of trouble.

Running into trouble at the 43, Hope punted and Fairview began to fly from their own 24. Seven plays moved them to their own 49, but two beautiful defensive tackles by Clifton Peavy left Fairview with a 3rd and 26.

Two passes took the Cardinals to the Bobcat 23 and a desperation pass at the buzzer was all Fairview could try for. The Bobcats used a rough defense and kept Fairview out of real threatening opportunities all night. The offense showed some real power, penetrating inside the Cardinal 20 yard line four times. Both units played a fine game and deserved the hard-earned victory.

Hope now will be preparing for the Malvern Leopards and victory number 4.

COLLEGE FOOTBALL: RELEVANT OR RIDICULOUS?

By IRA BERKOW
NEA Sports Editor

NEW YORK—(NEA)—Somewhere along the line during the last 100 years, college football blew itself all out of proportion to the academic world around it.

The game became an important, if peripheral, part of the fabric of college life. Massive stadiums were built to fit massive players and massive crowds. Recruiting took the form of grand deception and competition on a grand scale. "Students" were paid huge sums to "turn off the lights in the gym." And these same scholars attended classes the way pro athletes attend banquets—only when they had the time or inclination—and they passed.

"Football coaches did not create football as we know it today," said Penn State coach Joe Paterno. "Society did." Now come three schools of thought on the big-business, high-pressure world of college football: One is that it is a part of the establishment and must go; a second is that it is still desirable because it reflects our country today, with its speed, aggressiveness, brutality (to some), and as a "metaphor for war," a third argument is that college football should be taken out of the exclusive hands of martinet coaches and self-serving alumni and returned to students who play football because it is a game and not a thinly veiled occupation.

The idea of winning at any cost is becoming passe at the beginning of the 1970s, just as is the idea that college is only where you go to get a well-paying job upon graduation. Football and football coaches are taking their place, finally, alongside classes and professors in which values, goals and authority are being questioned.

"Now," said Doug Finlayson, a wide receiver at Indiana, "coaches have to make their methods intellectually appealing to their players."

"If not," added Bob Holuba, Penn State honor student and All-American candidate guard, "coaches who don't are going to be in deep trouble in years to come."

Some coaches still seem to resist and still try to run a ship so tight as to be against the grain of what a college education is all about. Bear Bryant of Alabama, the winningest coach still active in college football, appears such a coach of the old guard.

His players live in an athletic dormitory. ("The students wouldn't stand for that kind of segregation here," said Ray Wilsey, head coach at the University of California, Berkeley.) And Bryant believes he has an obligation to watch over his athletes "24 hours a day." When a newspaperman tried to interview privately a few of the Alabama players on the Monday before a Saturday game, Bryant refused.

He said he didn't want their minds taken off the preparation for the game. (But wouldn't Shakespeare distract them from Southern Cal?) Also, he was afraid that an unfortunate quote might give impetus to the opposition.

"These are only 19- and 20-year-old boys," said Bryant. "They aren't up to matching wits with an experienced newspaperman. I'm doing 'em a favor."

Isn't this attitude totally alien to the civil rights of the athletes, and isn't it antithetical to the ideal give-and-take and exchange of ideas of a college campus? Should a coach—who is again ideally a college teacher—prohibit his students from this opportunity? And shouldn't the risk of saying something inopportune override the risk of losing a football game? Or is a football game comparable to putting national security on the line?

That this attitude is accepted at Alabama, and in the state, because of the overbearing personality cult of the coach makes the educational concept there a matter of concern and antediluvian.

The ideas of trying to achieve excellence, of competing,

Standard Size Golf Ball Agreement

By HARVEY HUDSON

MADRID (AP) — An agreement may be nearing on a standard size golf ball all over the world, but a sampling of players at the Eisenhower Cup world golf team championship shows the type of ball used is mostly a question of habit.

Officials of the U.S. Golf Association and the Royal and Ancient Club at St. Andrews, governing body for Britain, met earlier this week to try and reach an agreement.

In Britain, a ball with a diameter of 1.62 inches is considered standard, although British professionals have been playing for two years with the American size ball which measures 1.68 inches.

An announcement on the talks has been promised for next week.

Rumors have circulated here that a compromise on a ball measuring 1.66 inches may be the outcome.

Any change is expected to be put into effect over a period of several years to give manufacturers time to change their equipment and sell stocks from production during the change-over years.

Probably not more than 10 of the 143 players from 36 nations taking part in the Eisenhower Cup are playing the big ball.

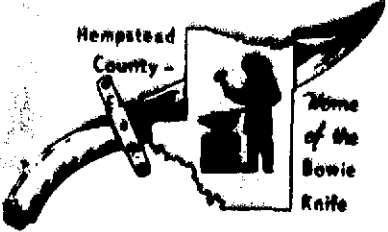

Clemence W. Benedict, non-playing captain of the U.S. team, said "we're going to keep on with the big ball. We don't think conditions here are any different than they are at home."

of group camaraderie working toward a common goal, of accepting victory or defeat gracefully are worth-while aspects of college football.

But they have been perverted by professionalism. Club football has been recommended as a solution, as has absolute abolishment. Neither is necessary. Cutting budgets and giving tenure to coaches to alleviate pressures by alumni, and instilling a classroom attitude to the game could bring college football back to sanity.

Soviet Base in Cuba Is Discouraged

By ROBERT A. DOBKIN
AP Military Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — By early and stern warning, the Nixon administration is trying to discourage Moscow from building a major Soviet naval base in Cuba.

The Pentagon disclosed evidence Friday of what it said appears to be a submarine support base under construction in the harbor at Cienfuegos, possibly for use by missile-firing Polaris-type subs now positioned in the Atlantic.

Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird said, "while we have seen activity along this line as far as Cuba is concerned, it is a little early to determine the extent of Russian naval involvement there."

White House officials quickly responded by saying this country "would view the establishment of a strategic base in the Caribbean with utmost seriousness." However, no diplomatic representations have been made to Moscow.

Officials here immediately drew a parallel with the 1962 Cuban missile crisis, when President John F. Kennedy said peace in the Caribbean could be preserved if Soviet offensive weapons were removed from the area and kept out in the future.

This continues to be U.S. policy, said one White House official who declined to be quoted by name.

But it is obvious the magnitude of the new naval development in Cuba is not the same as eight years ago when Russia placed offensive missiles on the island 90 miles from the U.S. mainland.

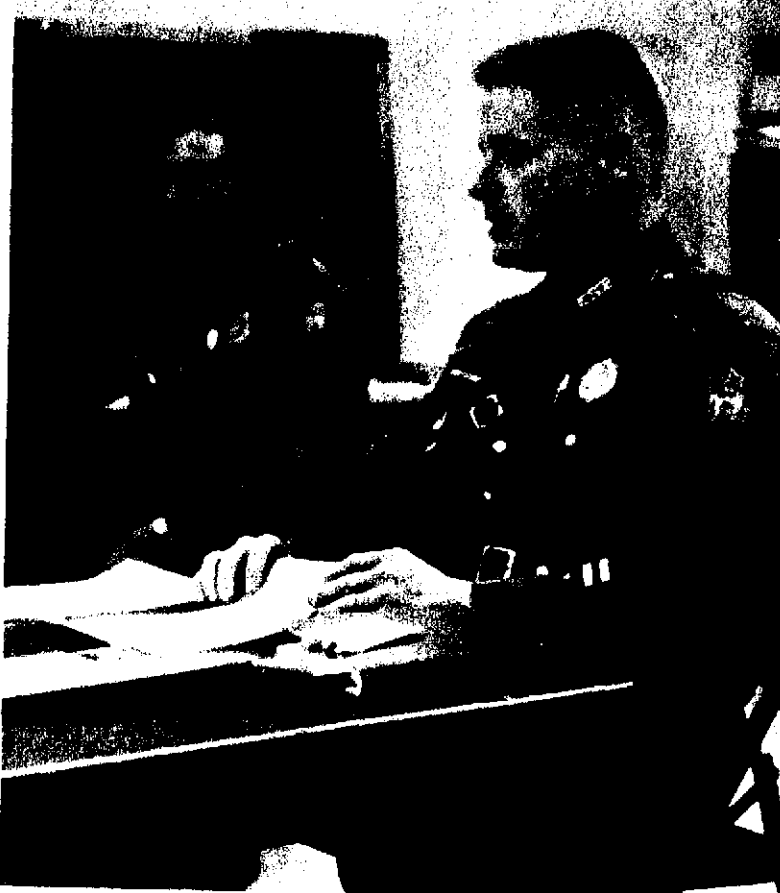

At that time, the Soviets had no Polaris-type submarines, and the United States held a clear military balance.

Today, with 13 nuclear-powered submarines armed with 16 missiles each and 15 more under construction, the Soviets can strike deep inside the United States without the need for land-based missiles in Cuba.

A base in Cuba would enable the Soviets to keep more submarines on station for longer periods of time without the need for returning to home ports for servicing and resupply. U.S. Polaris subs use bases at Holy Loch, Scotland; Rota, Spain, and on the Pacific island of Guam for this purpose.

Information on the Russian activity at Cienfuegos came from American U2 reconnaissance planes, the same aircraft which furnished the first solid proof of Russian missiles in Cuba on Oct. 24, 1962.

Stresses Safe Driving

State Police Sergeant Ray Davis discusses traffic accidents and stresses the need for defensive driving education. Sergeant Davis instructs the 8-hour Defensive Driving Short Course. State Police Captain Milton Mosier, District Commander, supervises the Sergeant. Dolores McBride, Extension Home Economist, led a discussion with county leaders about getting the people of the county concerned and involved in preparing themselves with defensive driving consciousness and skills as protection measures against automobile accidents.

"The death count due to motor vehicle accidents in Hempstead County has been decidedly lowered this year," said Capt. Milton Mosier of the Arkansas State Police, "and much credit for this can be given to the Defensive Driving Courses which have been taught in recent months in Hope." In 1969, 12 deaths involving motor vehicles were recorded in Hempstead County. Thus far, only 3 such deaths have occurred this year. Of course, we still face the most death-dealing, accident-prone season of Thanksgiving-Christmas-New Year's.

This is the reason it is particularly timely for the Defensive Driving Course to be offered once again just prior to the triple threat holiday period. Planning for the course was held September 16, and great enthusiasm

3rd District Show Starts Here Monday

The Third District Livestock Show and Rodeo starts officially Monday, September 28 at 4 p.m. with a parade through downtown Hope and ends in the Village Shopping Center.

The usual parade route will be followed, beginning on East Second Street at Young Chevrolet Co., continue through town down South Main Street to 6th Street, turn left to Hazel St., turn north to 4th St., turn right and go in to the Shopping Center at the intersection of South Shover St. and 4th. The parade will continue through the shopping center and form a U, stopping at Shover St. across from the Town & Country restaurant. The parade will disband there. Many floats have already been entered in the parade and this promises to be one of the best in recent years.

Lineup of the parade is as follows:

County and city police cars to lead the parade, followed by the Color Guard with Sgt. Claude Byrd in charge. Next will be the Parade Marshal, Judge Finis Odum and then the Hope High School marching band. State dignitaries will complete the first section of the parade.

Next will come the Civic, School and Youth floats with Arch Wylie and Troy Buck as co-chairmen of this division. Behind the floats will be the Pets with their owners, children on decorated bicycles and then the Prescott High School band to complete this section.

Ben McRae and Roy Fry are co-chairmen of the next section which consists of Girl Scout Units, New 1971 cars on parade, farm equipment and then the Riding Clubs.

The Sonny Myers Amusement Shows will open on the Midway Monday night and continue all through the week. Thursday will be Kid's day with all rides reduced from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m.

The Fair Queen's contest will be Tuesday night in the Coliseum and is free to the public. Quarter horse show finals will be Wednesday night in the Coliseum and is also free.

Wing Ranch of Bogata, Texas will again produce the rodeo which starts Thursday night and goes through Saturday night. Announcement of Rodeo Queen and drawing for a new automobile will be Saturday night in the rodeo arena.

Mills to Speak at Dedication

CONWAY, Ark. (AP) — Rep. Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., will be the featured speaker at dedication ceremonies for the Arkansas 60 bridge across the Arkansas River near here Sunday.

A crowd of about 1,000 persons is expected, with guests including state Highway Commission Chairman Truman Baker and Democratic gubernatorial candidate Dale Bumpers.

Democrats Talk Unity and Harmony

By ROBERT SHAW
Associated Press Writer

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — A new zing, a new zip, is evident in the state Democratic party, promising the party unity that Dale Bumpers pledged to achieve during his successful campaign for the gubernatorial nomination.

The "new spirit" that Democrats now talk about appeared in abundance at last week's State Convention, where Bumpers received a resounding ovation to cap a two-day display of harmony and unity.

A man close to Bumpers says he thinks the convention was representative of the feeling of the entire party.

If Democrats are closing ranks, Gov. Winthrop Rockefeller faces the prospect of recasting the alliances that won him two terms. Since Democrats are in predominance in the state, the Republican governor has won two terms on a combination of votes of disgruntled Democrats, "independent" Democrats and independents as well as the votes of Negroes and Republicans.

Marion Burton, Rockefeller's campaign manager, does not feel that Bumpers' victory in the runoff election over former Gov. Orval E. Faubus carried with it a momentum that bodes well for the Democratic nominee in the November general election.

He observed that only about half of the state's registered voters turned out for the runoff election. "There are a lot of votes wandering around out there," Burton said.

A problem for the Bumpers campaign is posed by the American party candidacy of Walter Carruth, a likeable East Arkansas farmer. It is generally conceded that he would do more harm to Bumpers than to Rockefeller.

The Life of a Baby Sitter Is Certainly Not a Very Easy One

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP) —

Remarks that young baby sitters get tired of hearing:

"When I baby sat at your age, Linda, I only charged 50 cents for an entire evening."

"I'm sorry there's nothing in the refrigerator to snack on but a couple of chicken wings, and they've been there for almost a week. If you don't eat them, would you mind feeding them to the cat?"

"You're five minutes late, Linda. Why is it that no one thinks it important to be prompt any more?"

"Of course, it is none of my business since I'm not your mother, Linda, but if I were I certainly wouldn't let a daughter of mine go out at night wearing a dress that short."

"The kitchen is a total mess, and the sink is simply stacked with dirty dishes. If you don't mind neatening up the place while we're gone, I'll pay you an extra quarter."

"You should have no trouble with Alyce; she's a real angel. Little Jimmy is the one you have to watch. He likes to pretend he's a dog and sneak up behind you and bite your ankles."

"I hear you also baby sit for the Joneses, the family that just moved into the next block. They're supposed to be real weird. Tell me, what really goes on in their house?"

"Hi, kid, are you the baby sitter? Say, you're a knockout. Maybe I'll have my wife take the children out and stay home and let you sit me."

"Why do we have to have her, Mama, instead of our regular sitter? She looks mean. I'll bet she'll pinch us or make us go to bed early if we try to have any fun."

"I know you read me Cinderella three times, but then you read me about Red Riding Hood and the wolf and that scared me wide awake again. So it's all your fault. But I'll close my eyes and really fall asleep if you read me about Goldilocks and the Three Bears just once more."

"At the very last moment our neighbors decided to go along also, Linda, so they brought their two kids over. That means you'll have four to watch, but that shouldn't be too many for a big strong girl like you, should it, dear?"

"Oh my, I don't have any change left in my purse and all my husband has is a $20 bill. I'm afraid you'll have to charge it and let me pay you double the next time I call you."

"Hello, hello, Linda? Honey, I know I promised you we'd be back by 11:30 p.m., but something came up and we'll be a teensy-weensy bit late. Why don't you get a blanket and lie down on the sofa, and I'll wake you up when we finally make it home?"

Army Plans Another Cut of 45,000

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Army, in cutting its troop strength to 1.2 million men by next June, will trim three divisions out of its combat force.

There will be a 125,000-man Army reduction by mid-1971 as compared with mid-1970, 45,000 of these men coming from combat divisions—about 15,000 in each division.

Most of the Army's cuts will be in support units. At 1.2 million men, the Army will be at its lowest strength in 10 years next June.

The size of the Army's reduction was announced previously; the dropping of three combat divisions was disclosed Thursday by Robert C. Moot, Defense Department controller.

Moot disclosed the cutback Thursday during a panel discussion before the National Security Industrial Association, a group of defense contractors.

Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird has established a goal of 2.9 million men in uniform by next June. The armed forces now have slightly more than 3 million men, compared with the Vietnam war peak of 3.5 million in 1968.

While Moot did not say how the cuts will be made, the Pentagon has followed a policy of inactivating Army units as they are withdrawn from Vietnam.

Moot said the cutbacks will come as a result of President Nixon's doctrine of reducing U.S. commitments abroad, thus requiring a smaller standing army and a greater reliance on providing allies military aid in the form of equipment and training, rather than armed troops.

Jordan and Egypt Hurl Charges

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Egypt accused Jordan today of violating the Jordanian cease-fire and planning to "liquidate" Palestinian guerrillas. Jordan's King Hussein said his forces had observed the truce "despite endless provocations" and called on the guerrillas "to slam the door shut forever on dissension and hostility."

He also announced over Radio Amman that a new government would be formed "within hours" to replace the military leadership he named last Wednesday, the day before the outbreak of the eight-day Jordanian civil war.

The military government resigned Friday.

The Jordanian army has been standing still around Ramtha and Irbid, 50 miles north of Amman, for the past three days, the king said. The situation in Amman was calm, he added, "except for scattered incidents where the armed forces were attacked."

He charged that a number of guerrilla groups were opposed to the cease-fire and were trying to sabotage it.

The charge that Jordan had broken the cease-fire agreement was made by Egyptian President Gamal Abdel Nasser in a cable sent to Hussein and broadcast over Amman radio. It was sent in the names of nine Arab nations whose leaders have been holding an emergency summit in Cairo.

News reports from Jordan Friday night said the fighting had ended. The round-the-clock curfew which had been in effect in Amman for more than a week was lifted for five hours daily, Radio Amman said.

Nasser charged that "a horrible massacre" was going on in Jordan "in violation of all Arab and human values." The cable, drafted at a meeting attended by Palestinian guerrilla leader Yasser Arafat, said Jordanian assurances that Hussein's commanders would observe the cease-fire were "completely broken and devoid of any real validity."

The cable said a delegation of four Arab leaders headed by Sudanese President Jaafar el Numeiri reported after returning from their cease-fire mission in Jordan that there was "a determination on the part of Jordanian authorities to continue the fighting despite all attempts to halt the bloodshed."

The message appeared to place Nasser and the other Arab leaders squarely behind the Palestinians.

Earlier, Libya's strongman, Col. Muammar Kadafi, proposed an Arab police force to supervise the truce in Jordan. Libya then severed relations with Hussein's government. The Egyptian Middle East News Agency reported that Kadafi suggested the force be formed of forces from his own country and neighboring Algeria.

New Machine for Cancer Patients

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — Cancer victims soon will be treated by a revolutionary system that shoots radiation into patients by remote control.

Dr. Carl F. Von Esen says he and associates at the University of California developed the system to overcome one of radiotherapy's toughest problems—getting radiation to a cancerous area without destroying intervening tissue.

"The instrument shoots small beads of radioactive cobalt into patients through thin tubes of plastic tubing," he said Wednesday in an interview. "The beads are moved through the tubing and positioned at the cancer site by a series of cables controlled by remote control."

"The entire treatment takes only a few minutes," he said, "and it can be done on an outpatient basis."

Hempstead Agri Extension Service Sponsors Safe Driving Course

Hempstead County leadership met in the Extension Office Conference Room to discuss the automobile accidents and preventive measures to help Hempstead County Drivers "drive to stay alive."

The Hempstead County Agricultural Extension Service is sponsoring this coordinated effort of groups throughout the county in organizing and promoting an 8 hour Defensive Driving Short Course. This will be instructed in 4 two-hour sessions, 7:00 - 9:00 p.m. October 26, November 2, 9, 16, at the Red River Vocational School meeting room.

Extension Homemakers Council; Mrs. Mary E. Keys, President Southeast E. H. Club; Mrs. Wilton Mullins, Shover Springs Community; Stark Ligon, M & M Leasing; Mrs. Virginia Fletcher, President Guernsey P.T.A. (not pictured); attending Mrs. Alphonse Deaham, Associate Extension Home Economist and Dolores McBride, Extension Home Economist.

Some others offering support but unable to attend: Hope Star, KXAR Manager Haskell Jones; Finis Odum, County Judge; Bill Reynolds, Hope School District Supervisor of Bus Drivers; Mack McLarty, State Representative Elect; Hope BPW; Rotary Club; Jaycees; Patmos, Spring Hill, Paisley and Yeager P.T.A.'s. Other groups are encouraged to join this educational effort and may pick up enrollment forms at the Extension Office located in the County Courthouse.

Hempstead County drivers are urged to share the enthusiasm, interest, and concern of 268 in the county who have completed the short course. Enroll by registering at the Agricultural Extension Office, telephone 777-5771, or filling out an enrollment blank being distributed through the organizations.
